

A land art installation in a natural setting. The central focus is a grey, rectangular stone with a white, zigzag pattern on its side. This stone is surrounded by several bundles of thin, light-colored sticks or twigs. Some of these sticks are arranged in a triangular frame on the left, and others are scattered around the central stone. The ground is dark brown soil with some dry leaves and twigs. In the background, there are more sticks and a large, grey, textured rock. The overall scene is outdoors, with natural light and shadows.
